DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
  - I. Claims 5, 22-27, and 29 drawn to a method and computer product for analyzing resource placement, classified in class 705, subclass 008.
  - II. Claims 18-21 and 28, drawn to a method and system for determining and assigning resource placement, classified in class 705, subclass 009.
  - III. Claim 30-31, drawn to a method of validating a resource placement, classified in class 705, subclass 008.
2. Inventions (I) and (II) are related as subcombinations disclosed as usable together in a single combination. The subcombinations are distinct if they do not overlap in scope and are not obvious variants, and if it is shown that at least one subcombination is separately usable. In the instant case, subcombination (I) has separate utility such as analyzing resource placement, including selecting, for each of a plurality of specified business objectives of a company for which the decision is to be made and each of the criteria, a weight for weighting computations using that criteria with that business objective; creating a product profile that specifies a value for each of the identified criteria, wherein the specified values indicate importance to the company of that criterion; creating a geography profile for each of the identified candidate locations, wherein each of the geography profiles specifies a location-specific value for each of the identified criteria. See MPEP § 806.05(d).

3. Inventions (I) and (III) are related as subcombinations disclosed as usable together in a single combination. The subcombinations are distinct if they do not overlap in scope and are not obvious variants, and if it is shown that at least one subcombination is separately usable. In the instant case, subcombination (II) has separate utility such as assigning resources to a particular location, including performing value chain analyses for a product or service to be provided, thereby determining what types of resources will potentially improve the analyzed value chain; developing cost factors pertaining to placing the determined resources in the candidate locations. See MPEP § 806.05(d).
4. Inventions (II) and (III) are related as subcombinations disclosed as usable together in a single combination. The subcombinations are distinct if they do not overlap in scope and are not obvious variants, and if it is shown that at least one subcombination is separately usable. In the instant case, subcombination (III) has separate utility such as determining locations in need of resources, including creating a geography profile for the selected location, where the geography profile specifies location-specific values for second selected ones of the identified criteria; programmatically computing a location-specific resource placement score for each of the candidate locations using the values specified in the product profile and the values specified in the geography profile; and making a recommendation, based on the one or more computed location-specific resource placement scores, as to the selected location. See MPEP § 806.05(d).

The examiner has required restriction between subcombinations usable together. Where applicant elects a subcombination and claims thereto are subsequently found allowable, any claim(s) depending from or otherwise requiring all the limitations of the allowable subcombination will be examined for patentability in accordance with 37 CFR 1.104. See MPEP § 821.04(a). Applicant is advised that if any claim presented in a continuation or divisional application is anticipated by, or includes all the limitations of, a claim that is allowable in the present application, such claim may be subject to provisional statutory and/or nonstatutory double patenting rejections over the claims of the instant application.

5. Restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper because all these inventions listed in this action are independent or distinct for the reasons given above and there would be a serious search and examination burden if restriction were not required because one or more of the following reasons apply:

- (a) the inventions have acquired a separate status in the art in view of their different classification;
- (b) the inventions have acquired a separate status in the art due to their recognized divergent subject matter;
- (c) the inventions require a different field of search (for example, searching different classes/subclasses or electronic resources, or employing different search queries);
- (d) the prior art applicable to one invention would not likely be applicable to another invention;

(e) the inventions are likely to raise different non-prior art issues under 35 U.S.C. 101 and/or 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a invention to be examined even though the requirement may be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected invention.

The election of an invention may be made with or without traverse. To reserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse. Traversal must be presented at the time of election in order to be considered timely. Failure to timely traverse the requirement will result in the loss of right to petition under 37 CFR 1.144. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which of these claims are readable on the elected invention.

If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which of these claims are readable upon the elected invention.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the inventions are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the inventions to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other invention.
